THE NEW TANK TEST

At the Jeannette Window Glass Works

Said to be a Great Success.

THE FIRST CYLINDER WAS BLOWN

In the Presence of a Very Large and Distinguished Assembly.

WHAT EXPERTS SAY ABOUT THE GLASS

At 1 o'clock yesterday morning the tank furnace of the new window glass works of Chambers & McKee, at Jeannette, started operations, and, according to men of the most reliable authority, the working of the tank, as well as the material produced, was tors of the new process, had invited a num-

her of their friends to witness the start, and,

inasmuch as the inhabitants of Jeannette had also been advised as to the hour, there was quite an excitement in the little town on Sunday night. About 12 o'clock a stream of people was seen going in the direction of the new glass works, which might well have been mistaken for a moonshiners' A full turn of workers-24 blowers and 24 gatherers-had already assembled at the furnace when Mr. James Chambers, a number of ladies and the visitors generally arrived.

Proudly the workers were seen walking up and down in front of the great tank, in which the red hot mass of bubbling batch was hissing and roaring. Now the men looked at their tools, lifted them up, and, as if they were anxious to be in good practice when the decisive moment

"Well, boys, go ahead?" he finally remarked, turning around to Mr. Moore; and the workers, not waiting for orders from that gentleman,

The gatherers, who had had their big iron pipes in the fire for some time, now pulled them out and quickly started toward the furnace. Within a second after the word hal been given, the 24 men were gathering the white metal out of that vast sea of melting glass. Rapidly they pulled it out, turning the pipe all the time: then they returned again to the furnace to make the coil become and larger of the property o

Mr. David Roberts, a well known glass merchant from New York, who had come to Jeanchant from New York, who had come to Jeannette purposely to witness the start, also pronounced the first roll to be entirely perfect.

In the meantime the workers kept on increasing the number of rolls, and in a very shorttime roll upon roll came from the pipes to be stacked in one corner. Roll upon roll was critically examined, but all passed the test of searching scrutiny to the greatest satisfaction. By this time the men seemed to be feeding at home around the furnaces, and in a few moments singing and whistling of familiar American and British airs resounded through the building; for it must not be forgotten that the Britishers were all there, and, in their long blouses, which looked more like oversized night shirts, they looked quite distinctive as compared with their American colleagues.

The first ripple of excitement being over and such a grand realization of the most sanguine expectations being the result, the visitors gradually dispersed and soon the workers had it all to themselves.

THE WORKS DESCRIBED.

The tank is the largest in the world, measurhas a capacity of 670 tons of molten glass. There are two blowers furnaces to the tank, which lends the building the shape of a T. Forty eight men, blowers and gatherers, are at work at the same time and the weekly production of the tank is expected to be 6,912 50-foot boxes of glass.

Everything is arranged to the best advantage. Immediately behind the tank is the mixing room, wheeles the batch is brought to the tank on a wheelearrow. Two men, having iron shovels 30 feet long, and running on wheels, are constantly feeding the tank, while at the other end the gatherers are taking the ready metal out. As soon as a blower has finished a cylinder and it has gotten somewhat cool, a laborer carries it into the flattening department, which is a building 240 feet long. From the flattening department the glass runs on a lear into the cooling room, where other men are awaiting its arrival to take it to the costing department. Immediately adjoining the latter are the packing rooms, where the glass is finally gotten ready to be shipped.

The whole is manipulated on the most systematic method of perfect rotation, and no hitch or delay seemed to be experienced anywhere.

is exceedingly successful. The men are all in good shape, and the greatest satisfaction reigns all around."

"First rate; you can go and see for yourself, and you can ask them, too, for that matter,
"As regards the tank system, it is a success.
There has not been a hitch, and we will now go to work and get the other ready, in order to commence operations with both of them in September."

"How long will the men work at this one?"

"How long will the men work at this one?"

"Until the last day of June."

In conclusion he remarked that the glass manufacturers who had prophesied such a giaring failure for the tank would all be very much disappointed, and the only effect it would have will be that the tank system will be the system of American window glass manufacture of the future.

Your informant says no other business than this

Your informant says no other business than this was transacted, and yet your report gives other business. It is absolutely unfrue that any delegate or delegates from any organization or organizations gave notice that they would place the matter before their organization and recommend a withdrawal from the Council. I know that no delegate has so expressed himself.

The statement that this investigation is backed up by politicians is wiffully and maliciously false, and your reliable (?) informant is challenged to name one.

He says President Evans will be placed on the stand and asked to make good his statement that L. A. 300 had refused to indorse Mr. Campbell. President Evans never made such a statement; but he did say that this business was referred from the L. A. to the Council and there acted on, and the minutes of L. A. 300 show this to be a fact.

and the minutes of L. A. 300 show this to be a fact.

The story that anybody wants to get Campbell into the penitentiary is the merest bosh. This investigation is simply to find out whether there is any fruth in the statements, current all over the country, that certain parties had been guilty of evading or couniving to evade an act of Congress to prevent the importation of foreign workmen under contract to work in this country. If anybody is guilty he or they will be prosecuted. If not, the public shall know it. Is there anything wrong about this? Why do these people want the reporters to be present? Is it that the names of proposed witnesses shall be made known, and those witnesses choked off? Aircady it is rumored that one witnesses from L. A. 300 is to be purshed. Is this true?

and those witnesses conged off: Alreany it is runored that one witness from L. A. 30 is to be punished. Is this true?

What if the officers of the Green Bottle Blowers and the Flint Workers are interesting themselves in this affair? Was not the law enacted for the benefit of all workingmen? Reference is made to the animus of Homer L. MeGsw in this affair, and the man specifies certain old political matters. The printers of Phisburg never instructed McGaw not to issue the said political elecular. He was a member of L. A. 230, job printers. L. A. 1850, newspaper printers, did instruct J. L. Eyans, W. F. of the D. A., to keep out of the political fracas, and he obeyed their orders. This matter was settled in the General Assembly at Hamilton, Ont., in 1885, and I shall say nothing more about it. In conclusion, Campbell is not the party being looked for particularly, but the guilty party, who ever he may be. Those who are conscious of their innocence should be assisting the investigation, and not trying to re-

POR SALE — THOUGHTFUL PERSONS IN buying a home will take into account the surroundings and probabilities of enhancement of value; convenience to good improvements is a leading consideration; also rapid transit to and from the business part or the city; the quality of the houses in the neighborhood goes for a good deal; as to build or buy a handsome stone or brick residence and have interior houses go up afterward on adjoining lots detracts from the value of the first; to buy on a neatly paved street, with sewery, gas and water aiready laid, is important; one if en knows what the whole cost is, and has not is worry about the cost of future grading and paving. All these items and many more are covered by the handsome new dwellings on Oakland Square (formerly Linden Grove), which need only be seen to be appreciated. The price is $6.500 and and 18,750, payable on easy terms, for elegant, thoroughly well built and commodious houses, standing apart, on lots 30x100, and fitted with all the modern conveniences. All the houses front on asphaltum streets, and upon a handsome park planted with shade trees; old forest trees plentified with shade the neighborhood. The cable cars are yow but air minutes' distant, and will be brought (till nearer. These houses are rapidly selling, being pronounced bargains at present prices. Apply 15 of AMUZL W.
